certify that they qualify for authorship due to their substantial contribution to the work submitted. The undersigned authors declare that this manuscript has neither been published nor is it under simultaneous consideration for publication elsewhere. The authors agree to grant the Journal of Psychiatric Nursing the first right of publication if the manuscript is accepted. Articles published in Journal of Psychiatric Nursing are licensed under the Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial 4.0 International (CC BY-NC 4.0) license. This license allows the work to be shared, copied, reproduced, and adapted in any size and format, with proper attribution to the original work, provided it is not used commercially. Accordingly, the authors who publish their articles in the journal are deemed to have accepted the following conditions:

- The author(s) retain the copyright of the article and grant the journal the first right of publication. The article is licensed under the Creative Commons Attribution license, which allows others to share it, provided the author(s) are credited and the article is first published in this journal.
- The author(s) may enter into a separate agreement for the distribution of the published version of the article (such as sending it to an institutional database or publishing it in a book) without granting full authorization.
- The author(s) may share the published version of the article on their corporate database or personal websites. This can lead to efficient exchanges, earlier dissemination of the article, and more citations.

The final version of the manuscript has been reviewed and approved by the corresponding author.

This Copyright Agreement Form must be signed/ratified by all authors. Separate copies of the form (completed in full) may be submitted by authors located at different institutions; however, all signatures must be original and authenticated.
